THE STORY OF THE LONELY RICH MAN

A rich man who had some of gold discovered he was growing old. Was coming to that time of life. When he must quit his sordid life. And spend his few declining days in peace. But when he sat him down to rest he found his heart no joy possessed. The hours dragged, the days were long. His nights brought neither sleep nor peace.

And with the gold he'd fought to own He found that he must live alone.

He called a trustee servant forth Who often had come forth to buy. He talked about his wealth and said: "You long have bought my wine and bread."

And bargained here in shop and store For all that I have hungered for. Now I see another task for you: I want the comradeship of men—Men who will gladly cheer me when I am sad, and comfort me when I am old. Go fill this room with company."

The servant left as he was told. And talked about his master's gold. He tramped the streets both up and down. Searching far suburbs of the town. And sought to buy a friend or two. Who to a rich man would be true. But all who heard him loudly jeered. And he was scorned, scorned and sneered. And this he said, when he returned: "For once your money has been spent. With all the gold you have to spend You cannot buy one faithful friend." (Copyright, 1919, by Edgar A. Guest.)

HUGHES OUTLINES
LEAGUE CHANGES

Seven Amendments to Safeguard U. S. Rights Proposed in New York Talk.

ENTITLED TO BETTER WORK

American People, He Asserts, Demand More Finished Document.

SEES DANGER IN GUARANTEE

Assurance of Independence and Enforced Administration Objected To.

NEW YORK, March 26.—Seven amendments to the league of nations covenant, intended primarily by their author to insure the American continent against European aggression, to protect the United States from enforced administration of foreign territory and to revoke the "troubling" guarantee of the existing political independence of member nations were proposed here today by Charles E. Hughes.

Minor suggestions were that definite limitation be placed upon the league's field of inquiry, reserving to the several nations exclusive control of immigration, tariffs and other internal problems, that provision be made for the withdrawal of states from the organization and that what he termed an ambiguity as to the requirement of unanimous decisions by the league be cleared up.

Demand Better Work.
In an address before the United League club, reviewing the terms of the proposed covenant, Mr. Hughes declared that the American people "were entitled to a better piece of work." He said a mistake had been made in giving the impression that the document was a finished product with a good reason for his choice of expressions, when later it was found necessary to excuse it as a hasty draft which required revision. He added that "much would have been gained" if at the outset "part of the time expended in its praise had been devoted to its correction."

The "Hughes amendments" suggested "aside from formal improvements" were aimed as follows: (1) Explicit provision as to the requirement of unanimity of decision. (2) Suitable limitation as to the field of the league's inquiries and action. (3) A definite statement that the league is to be for the benefit of all nations. (CONTINUED ON PAGE EIGHT.)

MADISON, Wis., March 26.—Senator Irvine L. Lenroth, of Wisconsin, making his first visit to Wisconsin since his election to that body last April, spoke on the league of nations tonight before the Wisconsin general assembly in joint session. He discussed the proposed constitution of the league, article by article.

"Sacrifice of many things for which the United States has always stood is inevitable if the proposed constitution is to be adopted," he declared. "The people without either being given a voice," Senator Lenroth said.

He maintained that the senate had a right to insist in framing the constitution and declared that the president tried to coerce that body into approving the proposed draft by combining it with the treaty of peace and the league might exercise its power and bring about peace with Germany through joint resolution.

Paris Correspondent
Says Big Four Consider Proposals.

FINAL ACTION TO WAIT

Complete Settlement to Come After Commission Reports.

FOUR PURPOSES OUTLINED

Security for Nations and League Are Included in Plan.

LONDON, March 26.—The Paris correspondent of the Daily Mail Gazette says on high authority that "in order to avoid perils which would inevitably arise if preliminary peace terms are not drafted until such time as the various commissions shall have finished their labors and have presented their respective reports, the representatives of the great powers have drawn up certain proposals which seem ample to constitute the basis of the final treaty, or one analogous to that signed at Versailles in 1919."

The correspondent adds that these proposals are under the consideration of the inner council of four—President Wilson and Premiers Clemenceau, Lloyd George and Orlando—which has temporarily superseded the council of ten, and that this arrangement will greatly expedite decision.

A final settlement will not be aimed at, "but the terms will be sufficient, firm, drastic and definite to provide for an enduring peace, justify in large measure early demobilization, simplify the grave international food problem and pave the way for speedy industrial reconstruction and financial reorganization."

The principal aims of the proposals now before the inner council are: (1) To insure ample security for the protection of France, especially on her eastern frontier; (2) to establish a strong Italy, with a formidable northern barrier against aggression; (3) to create a strong Poland; (4) to found a league of nations, pledged on material as well as moral grounds, to the preservation of peace.

WASHINGTON HEARS MUCH SPEED MADE

WASHINGTON, March 26.—A message to the white house today from the American peace delegation at Paris said greater progress toward peace was being made than "appeared on the surface."

No details of the progress were given and white house officials declined to speculate on what developments might have furnished the basis for the dispatch.

In some quarters it was assumed that the American delegates were optimistic over the important amendments to the league of nations constitution agreed upon yesterday, including one specifically to exempt domestic questions from the jurisdiction of the league, and over the apparent certainty that the associated powers will accept President Wilson's provision designed to preserve the Monroe doctrine.

Most of the republicans now in Washington declined to comment today on the amendments agreed upon at Paris.

Senators Borah, of Idaho, and Poindexter, of Washington, outspoken opponents of the league, were exceptions to the rule.

"I won't support the league of nations constitution," Senator Borah said, "no matter if it contains a Monroe doctrine amendment of not so long as control is placed in the hands of three Europeans and one Asiatic as now proposed."

Senator Poindexter declared that the only change that would be satisfactory to him would be to strike out everything after the preamble.

HOPE TO END LONG WAR

Harmony of All Factions Is Sought in Step—to Reach Out for Foreign Trade.

CHICAGO, March 26.—Delegates attending the meeting of the petroleum congress here tonight organized the American Petroleum Institute, which it is intended will promote harmony within the ranks of the oil industry and seek to expand foreign trade in this line.

Another important object sought by the new organization is to end the war of many years' standing between the big producers and the independent producers.

Officers Chosen.
The following officers were chosen: President, T. A. O'Donnell, independent producer of California; vice presidents, Samuel Messer, independent refiner of Emerton, Pa., H. L. Doherty, New York, J. W. Van Dyke, Philadelphia, president of the Atlantic Refining company; treasurer, H. F. Sinclair, New York, president Sinclair Oil company; general secretary, R. L. Welch, Kansas City, general counsel Western Petroleum Refiners.

In a statement issued by the officers of the new organization are outlined as follows: "The launching of the American Petroleum Institute marks an epoch of first importance in the history of the oil industry. It is formed with expectation and hope of perpetuating the co-operation between various branches of the industry and the industry as a whole, in co-operation with the government that made possible the brilliant success of the industry in meeting all demands and requirements of the government and the American people for petroleum products during the war."

"More than 80 percent of the petroleum products used during the war came from the United States and the success of the effort, it is generally agreed, would have been impossible save for the close co-operation of the government and the industry."

Modeled After War Boards.
"The activities of the new organization are modeled somewhat upon those of the chamber of the United States and the national petroleum war service committee, the bylaws providing for co-operation with the government in all matters of national importance, and the study of the interests of the petroleum industry and the study of the arts and sciences connected with the petroleum industry."

Baker Confers With Committee of Bar Association With View to Bringing About Alterations.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Plans of the war department for alterations in courts-martial procedure were the subject of the conference held by Secretary Baker upon his return today to Washington from an inspection trip. The secretary met with S. S. Gregory of Chicago and Judge Andrew J. Bruce of the University of Minnesota, members of the American Bar association committee appointed to make an advisory study of the whole question of military legal practice and procedure.

Mr. Baker, after the conference, said he had placed all the personnel and records of the judge advocate general's office at the disposal of the committee.

He said that the committee in addition to the formulation of recommendations had been asked to call attention to any individual cases of injustice. The secretary had no comment to make as to what he planned with regard to publication of the reply submitted for his consideration by Lieutenant Colonel Ansell of the judge advocate general's department to statements by Major General Crowder, judge advocate general, previously given out through departmental channels.

Over a statement of the controversy that has arisen over the military legal system is the investigation being conducted at the secretary's order by Major General Chamberlain, inspector general.
